

That's HellermannTyton!

HellermannTyton is characterized by being a "hands-on" organization. Management's primary tasks are, of course, to develop strategies, define objectives, ensure that sales and cost budgets are determined and met.

The director is also directly responsible for a few significant strategic customers. Finally, it is his job to lead the organization - all typical management tasks.

But a director at HellermannTyton also participates in the daily practical tasks such as answering telephones, registering customer orders, etc. In this way, he helps to break down barriers between HellermannTyton and our customers. At the same time, he gets a direct market impression of what is going on and is thus able to make qualified decisions for the benefit of both HellermannTyton and our customers.
